Suppose you think "Bill" Wrigley spent more than a million dollars last year to say: "Five cents before the war; five cents during the war, and five cents after the war," just because he thought the newspaper men of the United States would appreciate his generosity. Well you guessed wrong. He spends millions because advertising pays.

After all, the world was created quite as much for other people as for me. When I am courteous to them, therefore, I am only dealing fairly by them. And if others seem discourteous I have it in my power to raise the average of mankind's courtesy—I can be even more regretful of the rights of others than exact fairness requires.

If you have something to sell that is really worth while, advertising will eventually create a demand for that article. It took the McCormick Harvester company almost a dozen years to get rid of the first binder—they only sold two more the next year—and now they can hardly keep the supply up to the demand. But you bet they haven't quit advertising.

Fashion Show Big Event.

One of the most enjoyable occasions of the week, and one which has been the cause of many complimentary remarks, was the Spring Opening and Fashion Show staged by Draper & Draper Co., Wednesday afternoon.

Prior to the opening, invitations were mailed out and a large crowd present. Once you got into the building, it was not an easy matter to get out, but, notwithstanding the "jam" it was a most enjoyable affair, and one that will long remain in the memory of both the old and the young.

The building was beautiful decorated with ferns, red and white Carnations, and American Beautie roses. A beautiful boquet was presented to the ladies and children as they entered.

Miss Lella Draper, who has charge of this department, has expressed herself as being highly pleased, both with the show and the attendance, and has been highly complimented on the nice selection of hats and ready-to-wears, which were gracefully modeled by several young ladies of the town, including: Misses Doratny Anderson, Rose Johnson, Vivian Cooper, Bonnie Shoulders, Hallie Reeves, Leona Roberts and Mrs. W. B. Wooten.

A splendid musical program was rendered by the High School Orchestra, under the direction of their efficient instructor Miss Bolen, Criminal Court adjourned today (Friday,) after a five days session. The proceedings will appear in next issue.

Misses Ruby Draper, Mary Quarles and Effie Whitaker of Whiteville, are the guests of relatives here.

Miss Martha Johnson has accepted a position with the Gainesboro Dry Goods Co., and will be delighted to have her friends and acquaintances call and see their new spring goods. Miss Johnson is an experienced dry goods lady and the Company is to be congratulated in securing her services.
